Chicago. Presbyterian theological seminary.

In 1829 the Synod of Indiana established a theological department at Hanover academy (now Hanover college) Hanover, Ind., which was commonly known as "The Indiana theological seminary". In 1840 it was removed to New Albany, Ind., and was there carried on under the name of "The New Albany theological seminary" until 1857. In 1858 the control of the seminary was transferred to the General assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A.; it was moved to Chicago in 1859 and was incorporated as "The Presbyterian theological seminary of the Northwest". In 1886, in recognition of the support and endowment given by Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick, the name was changed to "The McCormick theological seminary of the Presbyterian church". In 1928 at the request of the McCormick family, the name was changed to Presbyterian theological seminary, Chicago.

Chicago synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church.
Organized in 1871 as the Indiana synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church, it changed its name in 1895 to Chicago synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church. The name Chicago synod of the United Lutheran church in America appearing on its minutes for 1919 was never legally adopted. The synod joined the General council in 1872 and the United Lutheran church in America in 1918. In 1920 it went out of existence as a result of the policy to eliminate the overlapping of synods on the same territory. Its pastors and churches in Illinois became members of the new Illinois synod of the United Lutheran church in America, those in other states became members of other synods.
